

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An organizer is provided, having a holder and at least one container unit. The container unit has a housing with opposing side walls, and a plurality of bins mounted between the side walls for rotation between closed and open positions. In the closed position, the outer faces of the bins are generally coplanar, and in the open position, the outer faces each angle outwardly from the housing, thereby providing access into the bins. The bins are connected together for movement in unison, and the outer faces occupies substantially all of a front portion of the housing.